MURDER, MADNESS LOVE

Curiosity Quills Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 294 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.7in. A killer plays cat and mouse with a young widow against the snowy backdrop of an Alaskan winter. Branded a black widow after the suspicious death of her millionaire husband, Sarah Palmer flees Seattle for Anchorage. But the peace and quiet she hoped to enjoy in her hometown is soon shattered: The killer is murdering Sarah look-alikes on the 14th of each month, taunting Sarah with a valentine of evidence. After her experiences in Seattle, Sarah is slow to go to the police. When she finally does, she finds Detective Steven Quaid, who is called on to protect the beautiful widow from a stalker intent on her destruction. Steven is not entirely sure she is not behind the scheme herself, and before long Sarah has him wound up tighter than barbed wire. Is Sarah a victim or a very skilled manipulator? With a killer on the loose and a climbing body count, Steven can't afford to hedge his bets—or his life. Sunlight blazes on an empty canvas. Arctic winds gather snowflakes on a frosty window ledge as a statuesque form appears. She moves past a table littered with papers. Headlines splash news of murder, but it's the photo of another young woman with features mirroring her own that draws her attention. A different headline peeks from underneath the Anchorage Times. Wealthy Businessman Dies in Car Crash . . . BLACK WIDOW SUSPECTED! Graphic images swirl through her head and a tear rolls down her cheek. She drifts toward an easel and a trembling hand dips a sable brush into a palette of paint. The Westminster doorbell chimes. The brush slips and blood-red paint stains the floor. Detective Steven Quaid waits. His Tlingit, Indian features carved...
