However the friends of Mr. Jefferson may attempt to ascribe this measure to a becoming condescension, men of correct minds cannot but perceive in it a mischievous tendency to lower the appropriate dignity of official character. In the organization of a Government, there must always be lodged in the Executive a sound and legal discretionary power, to remove from office for inability or delinquency, without being obliged to explain to the Public the reasons of his conduct. For him to make it the subject of controversy, implies a right...
